

ASSIGNMENT OF COPYRIGHT

Sponsor: The British Computer Society

Your paper has been accepted for publication in the following journal, and before proceeding, we need your agreement in writing. Please read this form carefully, tick the appropriate box, sign at the bottom, and return the ORIGINAL to Oxford University Press as quickly as possible.

Journal The Computer Journal Manuscript number _____
Title of Article _____

Authors _____

I confirm that this material is my original work, has not previously been published (in print or electronic format), and is not currently under consideration by another journal. I also warrant that this material is free of plagiarism, and that I have exercised reasonable care to ensure that it is accurate, and to the best of my knowledge, does not contain anything which is libellous, or obscene, or infringes on anyone's copyright, right of privacy, or other rights.

☐ BOX A: To be completed if copyright belongs to the author

I hereby assign to the British Computer Society the copyright in the article present and future. In particular, this provides the Publisher, Oxford University Press (OUP) with the exclusive right to reproduce and/or distribute the article (including the abstract) throughout the world in printed, electronic or any other medium now known and hereinafter invented, and in turn to authorize third parties (including Reproduction Rights Organizations such as the Copyright Licensing Agency), to do the same. Furthermore, I agree that OUP may publish the article in the above journal, and sell or distribute it within the journal, on its own, or with other related material. These rights are assigned for the full legal term of copyright.

☐ BOX B: To be complete if copyright does not belong to the author

The above article has been written in the course of my employment, and with the express authority of my employers, I hereby assign to the British Computer Society the copyright in the article present and future. In particular, this provides the Publisher, Oxford University Press (OUP) with the exclusive right to reproduce and/or distribute the article (including the abstract) throughout the world in printed, electronic or any other medium now known and hereinafter invented, and in turn to authorize third parties (including Reproduction Rights Organizations such as the Copyright Licensing Agency), to do the same. Furthermore, I agree that OUP may publish the article in the above journal, and sell or distribute it within the journal, on its own, or with other related material. These rights are assigned for the full legal term of copyright.

☐ Box C: To be completed when articles are in the public domain, e.g. US Government Publications

I certify that the above article is in the public domain. No assignment of copyright or licence to publish is therefore necessary.

Copyright is assigned to the British Computer Society, and this will be indicated in the copyright line of the article. However as the author, you retain the right to use the work you have submitted, free of charge, in other publications written or edited by yourself, provided that you acknowledge the Journal as the original place of publication, and that we are notified of any republication (at the address given below). You also retain the right to mount your version of the article on your personal World Wide Web home page and/or that of your employer's, provided that you (a) cite the Journal as the original place of publication and acknowledge the British Computer Society as the copyright owner and (b) provide electronic links from your article to the Publisher's home page for the journal.

_____
Signature
On behalf of all co-authors (if any)

_____
Print name

Date: _____

Notes (please read):

1. No article will be published unless a copyright assignment form or licence has been signed. Authors who are unable to assign copyright should request a licence form from OUP.
2. Before signing this form please ensure that you have obtained all the permissions required for material used from other copyrighted publications. The cost of all fees payable for permissions to use such copyright material shall, unless otherwise agreed, be borne by the author.
3. Licensing of publication rights to one central organization will ensure the widest possible dissemination of the article. It will allow requests by third parties to be handled efficiently and consistently. All requests to reprint your contribution, in part or full, will be subject to your approval (which we will assume is given if we have not heard from you within four weeks of your approval being sought)
4. Contact details for Permissions: Journals Rights and Permissions, Oxford University Press, Great Clarendon Street, Oxford OX2 6DP. Tel: +44 (0) 1865 267561. Fax: +44 (0) 1865 267485 Email: journals.permissions@oup.co.uk <http://www3.oup.co.uk/jnls/permissions/>